Your rights

The Freedom of Information Act 1982 (FOI Act) gives you the right to:

- access copies of documents (except exempt documents) we hold
- ask for information we hold about you to be changed or annotated if it is incomplete, out of date, incorrect or misleading
- seek a review of our decision not to allow you access to a document or not to amend your personal record.

You can ask to see any document that we hold. We can refuse access to some documents, or parts of documents that are exempt. Examples of documents that may be exempt include documents containing the personal information of another person or information about a person or organisation's business affairs.

How to make an FOI request

A FOI request must be made in writing, however, it is not mandatory to lodge a request using this form.

You can submit your request online using your Centrelink online account, by email, by post or you can attend one of our service centres. Your request must:

- be in writing
- state that the request is an application for the purposes of the FOI Act
- provide detailed information about the documents to assist us to process your request (for example, the time period of the documents you are requesting – such as the date, year and date range)
- provide relevant identification numbers, such as Centrelink Customer Reference Number, Medicare card number or Child Support Reference Number
- provide an address for reply (for example, a postal or email address). There may be risks with sending personal information through unsecured networks or email channels.

If you are seeking access to documents that contain your personal information, we will require proof of your identity before the release of any personal information.

If you ask a third party to make an FOI request on your behalf, you need to provide a specific, written authority for us to send copies of documents about you to that person, or to allow that person to inspect copies of documents containing information about you.

How long do I have to wait?

We are required to acknowledge your request within 14 days of receiving it and to answer your request within 30 days (unless the time frame is extended under the FOI Act). If the time frame is extended, we will notify you.

If you have not heard from us within the above time frames, you can send an email to freedomofinformation@servicesaustralia.gov.au

If you do not hear from us after 30 days, from the date we received your request, you can seek a review by the Australian Information Commissioner. To apply for an Information Commissioner review, go to oaic.gov.au

Do I have to pay anything?

There is no application fee for an FOI request. There is no processing charge for a request for access to documents containing only personal information about you. However, processing charges may apply to other requests. For more information about these charges, go to servicesaustralia.gov.au/foi

What can I do if I am not satisfied with the decision on my FOI request?

If you are not satisfied with the decision on your request, you have the right to ask for a review within Services Australia or to the Australian Information Commissioner. You can write to us and tell us why you want a review. You can also complain to the Australian Information Commissioner or the Commonwealth Ombudsman if you are not satisfied with how we have managed your FOI request.
