

Income declaration – for financial years starting from 2009-2010 (CS1668(2))

child support

When to use this form

Use this form to provide an income declaration (only for the 2009-2010 financial year onwards) if your taxable income has not yet been assessed by the Australian Taxation Office (ATO).

A financial year begins on 1 July and ends on 30 June the following year. For example, 1 July 2009 to 30 June 2010.

Important information

We use your adjusted taxable income to calculate your child support assessment. Adjusted taxable income is the total of your taxable income, plus other income components such as reportable fringe benefits, target foreign income, total net investment losses, some tax free pensions or benefits and reportable superannuation contributions.

When you lodge your tax return, we may replace your income declaration with your taxable income and amend your child support. The best way to ensure your child support is correct is to lodge your tax return on time every year. If you lodge your tax return late, we may not be able to backdate any changes to your child support assessment.

If you are not required to lodge a tax return, complete and return this form to us as soon as possible.

Online account

You can access your Child Support online account through myGov. myGov is a secure way to access a range of government services online with one username and password. You can create a myGov account at my.gov.au and link Child Support to it.

12 Read this before answering the following question.

Gross income includes gross income from wages before tax, taxable pension/benefits, business income, rental income, investment income, net capital gains and eligible terminations payments. Include any other assessable income that would be included in your tax return.

Allowable tax deductions must be recognised by the ATO (for example, work related expenses, business expenses, rental property expenses, financial investment expenses).

Total net investment losses are the amount by which the expenses for your investments, (for example, from rental property, shares, managed investments and forestry managed investment schemes), exceed the gross income from those investments.

Reportable fringe benefits includes benefits received as part of earned income but not as a wage or salary (for example, novated lease, use of a car as part of a salary package).

Target foreign income includes any foreign income exempt from tax, less any losses or outgoings incurred in deriving that income.

Total tax free pensions and benefits – Not all tax free pensions and benefits need to be included as adjusted taxable income. The following examples are to be included as they may be considered for child support purposes: disability support pensions, JobSeeker Payment, Carer Payment, invalidity service pensions, partner service pensions, income support supplements and Defence Force Income Support Allowances.

Reportable superannuation contributions are when you choose to salary sacrifice some of your wages into a superannuation fund. These are in addition to the compulsory contributions paid by your employer. If you are self-employed, these are the superannuation payments you make that you claim as a tax deduction.
