What you need to do to keep getting your JobSeeker Payment

Most job seekers have to do tasks and activities to get their income support payment - like JobSeeker Payment. These tasks and activities aim to help you find a job and improve your skills. We call these mutual obligation requirements.

You can find the requirements in your Job Plan. This is a written agreement you have made to meet your mutual obligation requirements.

Your Job Plan can include activities like applying for a certain number of jobs each month, and going to appointments or training.

You must also report your income to Centrelink every 2 weeks even it is zero. Remember to tell us when your circumstances change.

You should review your Job Plan regularly. Your employment services provider can help you do this, or you can do it using the Online Employment Service.

If you cannot go to an appointment or do your tasks, you need to tell someone ahead of time. That will be your employment services provider if you have one, or the Department of Education, Skills and Employment. You can call their Digital Services Contact Centre on 1800 314 677 and ask to speak to someone in your language.

If you do not have a good reason for not doing them, your payment can be suspended. You can also get other payment penalties.
