

Purpose of this form

This form is to make sure the person providing care can be paid (or continue to be paid) Carer Payment. Carer Payment is an income support payment for people who are unable to support themselves through substantial paid employment due to the demands of their caring role.

A person providing care may be paid Carer Payment if the combined income and assets of the person being cared for, their partner and in some circumstances their children, are below certain limits. These limits are updated each year.

This is a request for information under section 196 of the Social Security (Administration) Act 1999.

Who should complete this form?

This form should be completed by the person being cared for (or their nominee).

Filling in this form

Family assets

37 Please read this before answering the following questions about family assets.

The carer's entitlement to Carer Payment depends on the net market value of your family assets and in some cases your family's liquid assets.

Net market value is the amount you would get if you sold an asset, less any money you owe on the asset.

Family assets are assets in and/or outside Australia that belong to you, your partner, all dependent children under 16 years of age, or full-time students studying to Year 12 or equivalent under 20 years of age, in your care.

Include:

- bank, building society and credit union accounts
- managed investments, shares, bonds and debentures
- money on loan to family members, family trusts, an organisation or any other person
- motor vehicles, boats and caravans
- real estate
- household contents and personal effects
- collections (e.g. stamps, coins, paintings, jewellery).

Do NOT include:

- your family home
- an account used exclusively for funding from the National Disability Insurance Scheme.

What is the current total net market value of your family assets?

38 What portion of your current total family assets are liquid assets?

Liquid assets include cash, shares, loans, term deposits and amounts deposited or lent to banks or other financial institutions.

Do NOT include liquid assets from the National Disability Insurance Scheme.

39 In the last 5 years have you (and/or your partner and/or any of your dependent children under 16 years of age, or full-time students studying to Year 12 or equivalent under 20 years of age, in your care) given away, sold for less than their market value, or surrendered a right to any cash, assets, property or income?

Include forgiven loans and shares in private companies.

Taxable income

40 Please read this before answering the following questions about taxable income.

We need to know your (and/or your partner's) taxable income for the base tax year.

How to find out your taxable income for the base tax year:

- If you are completing this form because of a new claim for Carer Payment, the base tax year is the financial year that ended on 30 June of the calendar year immediately before this current calendar year.
If you are completing this form because of a review of Carer Payment currently paid, the base tax year is the last financial year.
- Your taxable income is shown on your Notice of Assessment.
 - The Notice of Assessment is sent to you by the Australian Taxation Office to advise you of the tax you owe or your refund entitlement.
- If you lodged your tax return, but have not yet received your Notice of Assessment, you can tell us the amount shown on your tax return.

41 Can you give us your (and/or your partner's) taxable income details from a Notice of Assessment or a tax return for the base tax year?

Note:

- Your carer may qualify, or continue to qualify, for Carer Payment if your (and/or your partner's) taxable income is less than the current limit.
- If your taxable income has fallen since the base tax year, we may be able to accept an estimate of your taxable income.
