

Unreasonable to live at home

Statement by Independent Third Party

(SY017)

Name of young person claiming 'Unreasonable to live at home'

When to use this form

The young person named above has applied as an independent person for Youth Allowance, ABSTUDY or Disability Support Pension purposes under the 'Unreasonable to live at home' guidelines.

In order for Services Australia to make an assessment, this form needs to be completed by an independent third party. An independent third party is someone who has contact with the young person and is aware of the family situation, for example, counsellor, social worker, doctor, teacher or an adult relative. They must have reasonable or first hand knowledge of the family situation.

The young person has applied to be considered independent, claiming it is unreasonable for them to live at home. To meet these guidelines it must be unreasonable for the young person to live at home because:

- of extreme family breakdown, other than normal parent or adolescent conflict
- of serious risk to their physical or mental health if they continue to live at home, or
- their parent(s)/guardian(s) cannot provide a suitable home as they do not have stable accommodation.

The information you provide on this form will help us decide if the young person qualifies for the independent rate.
